WHY BLOCK CONSTRUCTION?

It is intimated that the provincial department of railways will join the National Railways in trying to prevent the immediate extension of the C.P.R. line from Willingdon into Edmonton.

The greatest objection is that the C.P.R. has no legal right to build the Cutline branch without having obtained a special charter from parliament. The C.P.R. is proceeding on the assumption that its charter of 1881 gives it the right to extend its branch line into Canada from a point on a main line. On that assumption, and without special charter, it has built the Cutline line as far as Willingdon and is proposing to continue it to Edmonton.

The particular objection urged before the provincial railway department is that if the C.P.R. is admitted to have this power under its original charter, it may choose to exercise it right by building a branch railway system in the Peace River country, thus undermining the E.D. and B.C. system.

There will be general agreement that if the charter of 1881 confers power on the C.P.R. to build branch lines anywhere within its charter that claim is as sweeping as that should ever have been given to a railway company. Whether it has such power is a point to be threshed out before the Railway Commissioners can decide.

But just what is to be done by the department of railways trying to stall the extension of the Cutline line into Edmonton while this point is being argued before the Railway Commissioners? If the C.P.R. is building this rail line without legal warrant it has been doing so ever since construction started, and the proper time to raise the objection was when the first sod was turned. How does the department propose to meet this undertaking, and the supposed danger of the C.P.R. invading the Peace River country, were only discovered when the C.P.R. refused to run the Willingdon-Edmonton extension on the same terms demanded by Mr. Lukchukov, U.F.A. member of parliament for Vegreville?

If the C.P.R. is within its charter rights in building this road, blocking construction during the present session will not prevent it continuing the road to Edmonton, eventually—and also building into the Peace River region if it chooses to do that. The net result of opposing the extension will not even be to delay construction to next fall or the year after; which, obviously, will do nothing to benefit the E.D. and B.C. railway.

If the C.P.R. has not the legal right to build the road where it means there will be plenty of time for the company to undertake the construction of the Peace River branch railway system. The time for the provincial department to raise objection in behalf of the public is when the C.P.R. is shown to be invading the territory of that railway. Extending the Cutline line from Willingdon into Edmonton does not involve any such threat, nor indicate any early intention on the part of the C.P.R. to build into the Peace River country. Rather the contrary.

One other point is worth keeping in mind. If the extension of the line from Willingdon to Edmonton is stopped at that point before the company undertakes the construction of the Peace River branch railway system. The time for the provincial department to raise objection in behalf of the public is when the C.P.R. is shown to be invading the territory of that railway. Extending the Cutline line from Willingdon into Edmonton does not involve any such threat, nor indicate any early intention on the part of the C.P.R. to build into the Peace River country. Rather the contrary.

Practical sense would seem to suggest that the best plan for the provincial department of railways and the city of Edmonton, is to do is to encourage the C.P.R. to build the Willingdon-Edmonton extension during the present summer—charter or no charter. If the company is in agreement on the law, then the law which will have to face the music. And the claim of the department to monopoly rights in the Peace River district will be precisely the same after the Willingdon-Edmonton extension has been made as it now is.

COMING ALONG NICELY

The weather is doing its part these days to make another of the crops which have made the west famous—and prosperous. During the last ten days, rains have fallen pretty generally over the whole prairie country. A limited area in southwest Saskatchewan is probably the largest district that has not been thus favored. In Alberta there are few localities which have been missed, and the average precipitation in this province has apparently been heavier than in either of the others.

If fields in this vicinity are any indication, the crops are responding well to the moisture. From practically all sections in central and northern Alberta reports are that the crops are advanced for the season; is thrifty and in a good stand. A few degrees higher temperature would make a notable difference in growth, and warmer weather may be looked for as the month advances. Taking the country generally, there is nothing in sight to indicate that the harvest will be other than a good one.

Speaking of Champions

By EDGAR E. GUEST

The champions are sifted men, but oh they're very few. But one there is who wears the crown until he reigns no more.

But then comes the swiftest run, or strike the harpest blow.

Or supreme in any test—and champions come and go.

Men yearn to strive to lead their fields—they give their all, and the world sees.

The highest mountains on the earth to be the first to climb.

They strain their muscles and their nerves with energy and will.

For who would be a champion must have the greatest and most.

Now we can read the records books and find each champion's name.

And learn who leads his little field in every sport and game.

But I find none and no mention there of name or date of birth.

Or him, who's given his thought to be the kindest and most.

I'm told who can the swiftest run and who can fastest swim.

But the greatest neighbor—no word is told who leads the field in kindly deeds?

Somewhere I think I dig up who is the champion friend.

A Hero

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Who ought to be the heroes held up for boys today? What men are capable of inspiring them to the right kind of effort?

Some day a group of Los Angeles boys gave up their play before the pressure of waters and the valley below was inundated. Many lives were lost and many more swept away.

There was an investigation and the usual talk about the dam, William Mulholland, the man who made the dam, William Mulholland, an old man who had built many dams and dug many ditches at the time of his investigation, stepped forward and said, "I am responsible for this dam's giving way."

This is the kind of playing man that a country needs men that can make mistakes nobly and are ready to take my rebuke. I have erred and I am ready to take my medicine.

No act of Mulholland's life, and it has been crowded with acts, is greater than the self-sacrifice and emulation by the youth of the land than his willingness to accept the blame for that which was not in all probability any fault of his.

HOW EARLY DOES YOUR BABY REGISTER?

With no thought of a Hollywood career, but only with that scientific interest which makes psychologists do things, we have conducted experiments to determine the exact age at which babies begin to recognize correctly the human expression.

For four experiments have been made and so had only to decide the right age to begin.

Infants were placed in front of a screen and had a picture of a baby's face dropped on it.

For an infant company, the infants were stimulated behind a screen and then shown to medical students and parents.

Farm Young People Gather for Week of Study in University

Over 150 Boys and Girls Represent Many Parts of Alberta—Program Includes Lectures, Sports, Practical Work and Recreation

One hundred and fifty young people from the ages of 18 to 28, sunburned and tanned from the farms of many parts of Alberta, arrived at the university on Tuesday morning to begin the Farm Young People's week. Curtains were flying in the wind-swept rooms of Athabasca Hall, and the walls were covered with trophies. Something important was up, after the comparative quiet of the last few weeks. With everyone in the building was a group who were getting acquainted as though they had known each other for years.

Stimulating Program

The Farm Young People have been drafted along very similar lines to that of last year, with the object of stimulating the interest of the rural young person and teaching him how to meet the problems of culture, household economics and modern agriculture. American boys and girls' activities are to be found each instructive and necessary material. "What is the best way to grow?" Interest and enthusiasm are growing, and the number of students is also larger by over fifty than that of 1927.

Mrs. Jessie Montgomery, provincial librarian, is in charge of the girls, and Mrs. G. E. Salt is looking after the boys for the week.

Professor Strickland, in the absence of Dean Horner, will arrange and direct the various lectures which will be taken by the members of the university staff. Mr. Cox, of the university will attend, and U.P.W.A. members will be on hand to assist. Mr. Horner, Mr. Schleicher, chairman of the C.U.P.A., and Mr. G. C. Dunn, president of the U.P.W.A., will be present. Mr. Wynn, Mrs. A. H. Ward, Mr. McLean, Mr. J. N. McLean, of the Junior U.P.A. in Calgary, Miss Gladys Cumming, Mrs. A. H. Ward, who will have charge of girls' physical exercises and games, and Mr. Jackson of the Royal Alexandra Hospital, will arrange the boys' drill and field sports. The staff of the provincial public library is in charge of the important department of music, which includes studies in practical music, theory and history of music, a piano and first aid measures. Miss McIntyre is in the home economics department.

Up Bright and Early

Promoting a concert for Miss Simpson, the Farm Young People held an internal dance, enjoyed early morning coffee and tea, followed by a message of a day card from their parents. At 7 a.m. physical training was started, followed by breakfast at 8 a.m. The girls were up at 6 a.m. and the boys by Mr. McKenzie to hear of Mr. A. E. O'Brien, minister of agriculture, address a general session in the evening. The program included the first of the lectures—an outline of the work of the economic committee, including a demonstration of machine-made fabrics and decorative arts, and house hunting on the girls' This Afternoon

After luncheon at 12:30 the boys followed by the girls, who were followed by animals and birds, were invited to come home during the day to offer their congratulations on their wedding anniversary. The room was a bower of roses and lilies, and the dining room was centered with a silver service.

In the afternoon there was a tea party for the wives of the members and their daughters, and a dinner for New Zealand, where they are spending several months visiting Mr. and Mrs. Ernesto G. Verrada and Mr. J. Renke.

Mr. Frank Duck is coming to town this evening from Brandon, Manitoba, to speak at the Royal Alexandra Hospital after a period of appendicitis.

Miss Ruth Hemmell, is doing nicely at the Royal Alexandra Hospital after a period of appendicitis.

Wednesday the "school" breaks up. The day's routine will be similar to yesterday morning, with lectures and afternoon classes.
